The Board will also establish a New Approach Methodologies and Science Committee (NAMS) through the combination of the Science and Technology and Responsible Animal Use committees, which will be chaired by Craig Thompson, M.D.

The Board, through the Strategic Planning and Capital Allocation Committee, will conduct a comprehensive strategic review and evaluation of Charles River's business and prospects, including an examination of various alternatives to enhance long-term stockholder value. The committee will present its recommendations to the full Board upon completion of its review.

Charles River also announced a Cooperation Agreement with Elliott Investment Management L.P., Charles River's largest investor, under which Elliott has agreed to customary standstill, voting, confidentiality, and other provisions.

James C. Foster, Chair, President and Chief Executive Officer of Charles River Laboratories said, "Charles River has a long track record of taking actions to navigate dynamic market conditions and position the Company for growth. The initiatives announced today are a continuation of this effort for the benefit of all our stakeholders. We are pleased to welcome Steven Barg, Abe Ceesay, Mark Enyedy, and Paul Graves to the Board, whose seasoned industry expertise, strong operational and leadership experience, and fresh perspectives will add significant value as we continue to execute our initiatives to optimize our operating performance and drive efficiencies across Charles River's portfolio, and enhance long-term shareholder value."

Mr. Foster continued, "We would also like to extend our gratitude to Robert Bertolini, Deborah Kochevar, George Massaro and Richard Wallman for their long-standing service to the Charles River Board. Their leadership, strategic counsel, and many contributions over the years have been instrumental in the growth of Charles River to become a leading global partner for the discovery and development of life-changing novel drugs and therapeutics."

"We also welcome the opportunity to collaborate with Elliott Investment Management as we undertake these initiatives. They have deep experience in the healthcare space and have shown confidence in and commitment to enhancing the long-term potential of Charles River. Our Board and management look forward to working together to continue to position Charles River as the scientific partner of choice, poised to capture the significant opportunities ahead of us, and to deliver exceptional value for all our stakeholders," Mr. Foster concluded.

Elliott Partner Marc Steinberg said, "Charles River plays a mission-critical role in biomedical research and development, and we have long admired the Company's market-leading capabilities and strong competitive positioning under Jim Foster's leadership. We believe that the Company's current value is significantly disconnected from its underlying potential, and as Charles River's largest investor, we see a substantial opportunity to unlock that value. The changes announced today – including the new additions to the Board and the undertaking of a comprehensive strategic review – are the right ones, and we look forward to continuing our constructive partnership with Jim Foster and the Charles River Board and leadership team."

The Cooperation Agreement with Elliott will be filed in a Current Report on Form 8-K with the Securities and Exchange Commission.
