Charles River Plans to Acquire WuXi AppTec

April, 26, 2010 - Charles River is pleased to announce plans to acquire WuXi AppTec, creating the only global CRO to offer fully integrated drug development services from molecule creation to first-in-human testing. The combined company, which will retain the name Charles River, will offer enhanced support for your research programs through our comprehensive portfolio of early-stage drug development services and expanded global presence.

WuXi AppTec is a leading drug research and development outsourcing company with significant expertise in discovery chemistry. It was established in 2000 and has steadily grown to more than 4,000 employees with operations in China and the United States. Together with Charles River, a leading global provider of both research models and associated services as well as preclinical drug development services, the combined company will have 12,000 employees, providing unparalleled support for your early-stage drug development needs.

We regard this as a transformational transaction that creates value for customers by enabling you to obtain comprehensive support for your early-stage drug development needs from one company with extensive scientific expertise, depth and breadth. Further, we will be able to provide you with expanded global access to our integrated portfolio of products and services, enabling you to work within or across the locales you choose, in North America, Europe or China.

This strategic combination brings together two companies with the shared mission of supporting the acceleration of your drug development efforts and a commitment to exceeding your expectations.

We will continue to share additional details in the next few days on how Charles River will set a new standard in the outsourced drug development services industry. In the meantime, please view more information on www.criver.com, or contact your sales representative with any questions.

We look forward to continuing to work with you and to further supporting your early-stage drug development needs.
